

(2)

more than compensates for the loss of this factor alone. Image stopping ability is a most desirable characteristic in view of the fact that most items of interest to us would be in motion of one form or another. In other words, the factor of blur would always be minimum for each single exposure made.